A message from Miss Fisher

This week, I was fortunate enough to go to the Roman Baths with Beech class. Wow, what a day we had! We travelled via train, which was a lovely change from a coach, and even better that we managed to get it free via Platform. Platform are a government funded charity, who are able to offer complimentary travel alongside rail safety education. Sophie and Emily, who came into school to teach Beech class about rail safety last week and who accompanied our train travel to Bath, are both qualified teachers and were amazed by the children's maturity and manners. The children were able to explain the importance of the yellow line on the platform and how to enter and exit a train safely.

When at the Roman Baths, the children enjoyed:

- Dressing up like a Roman in togas and tunics.
- Digging for artefacts like an archaeologist.
- Creating mosaics that you would see in a Roman villa.
- Chatting to a Roman citizen and learning about how far he had travelled to visit the baths and worship the Goddess Minerva Sulis.

It was an amazing, memorable day – thank you Beech class for inviting me along.
